Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The physical and psychological health of the women in the walking program was measured at baseline and at 12 weeks. The physical health measures included heart rate, blood pressure, and body mass index. The psychological health measures included self-esteem, anxiety, and depression. The results of the study showed that the women in the walking program had significantly lower heart rates, blood pressures, and body mass indices at 12 weeks compared to the control group. The women in the walking program also had significantly higher self-esteem, lower anxiety, and lower depression at 12 weeks compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

REMARKS

 1920 CENSUS—INDEX
 DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
 BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE

1921

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and the role of the accounting department in ensuring the integrity of the financial statements.

2. It is noted that the accounting department has been working closely with the other departments to ensure that all transactions are properly recorded and that the financial statements are accurate and reliable.

3. The document also mentions that the accounting department has been implementing new procedures to improve the efficiency of the accounting process and to reduce the risk of errors.

4. It is further stated that the accounting department has been working to improve the communication and coordination between the accounting department and the other departments.

5. The document concludes by stating that the accounting department is committed to providing accurate and reliable financial information to the management and the board of directors.
